

R.A.C.E

R.A.C.E brings together characters, worlds, stories and rivalries from across popular culture. From superheroes and fantasy to anime, gaming, films and television, delegates will be tested on how well they know the fandoms they follow and how creatively they can use that knowledge. Across three rounds, recognition alone will not be enough; teams will need quick recall, storytelling, interpretation and the ability to defend the characters and worlds they know.

Round 1 :

The opening round places teams on a game-show board where almost anything from popular culture may appear. Questions increase in difficulty and value, but not every square will contain a conventional question. Some may require recognising a quote, completing a lyric, interpreting emojis or communicating an answer without saying it at all. Strong general fandom knowledge, fast recall and coordination between all three delegates will determine which teams move forward.

Round 2:

The remaining teams will be given pieces from worlds that were never meant to meet. A main character will be decided for them, while additional characters and an unfamiliar setting must be brought together into one original comic. The challenge is not simply to draw well, but to understand each character closely enough to create interactions, conflicts and a story that could somehow make sense despite crossing entirely different fandoms.
